

Time to Think Coaching Course

This four-day course follows on from the Thinking Partnership Course.

It deepens your expertise in the Thinking Partnership Session and qualifies you as a Time to Think Coach.

Aims & Objectives

- To develop your practice of the Thinking Partnership Session to advanced level
- To explore its application to and place in the wider world of coaching
- To deepen your way of being as a coach
- To explore the Diversity process, interlocking assumptions and group identities we may each bring as Thinkers, Partners and Coaches.

Most suitable for: Leaders, managers and coaches who have completed the Thinking Partnership Course and want to qualify as a Time to Think Coach.

Group size: 2-5 participants

Number of Days: 4 full days (2 plus 2), followed by practicum and supervision

“We are missing gold. We are missing the unthought thoughts of the client. We are missing their unique insight, their crystalline clarification, their spontaneous sweeping away of blocks, their inspired solving of the problem . . . And actually we close the door to more than that. We shut out also our clients’ building of respect for their own minds.” - Nancy Kline
